

Sea Scouts

By JULIAN BERGER

The Sea Scouting program at Camp Wauwepex, is designed to attract and hold the older boys' interest in Scouting, by offering an advanced course in the lore of the sea. Regular classes are held each morning on board ship. Instruction is given in rope splicing, rules of the road, navigation and regular Sea Scout tests.

The Scouts registered in the Outpost this week are: Hugh C. Orth, jr.; outpost director, Rockville Centre; Ed Greer, assistant outpost director, Valley Stream; Leonard A. Arnold, waterfront director, Farmingdale; Thomas Digan, Rockville Centre; Stanley Mroczkovsky, Hicksville; Pete Voornveld, Syosset; Jack Rainear, Valley Stream, and Robert Fisher, Rockville Center.

The Sea Scouts live aboard S. S. Albatross, a dry-land ship, which has sleeping quarters forward for the crew, and bunk space aft for the skipper and mate. Each evening standard running lights are placed on the bridge, and the ship is made comfortable for the night. A regular ship's routine is kept, and all events are recorded daily in the ship's log. The Scouts also have the use of two sailing boats, for overnight trips on Peconic Bay and Long Island Sound.

The officers aboard ship now are Skipper Wray Landon and Mate William Travis, both of Great Neck and members of the 1936 National Sea Scout Flagship "Tarpon." The crew consists of Gerald Becan, Hicksville; Al Leiman, Cedarhurst; Art Klages, Long Beach; David Sills, Laurelton, and Warren C. Hooker, Floral Park.
