

Scout Pageant Set for Sunday

Wading River—Andrew Jackson, swashbuckling fighter who rose from the backwoods to be seventh President of the United States, will be the subject of a pageant by the Buckskin Organization at Camp Wauwepex, Sunday evening.

The public invited to see the Scout show, which will be accompanied by an orchestra under direction of Lynn Wilke, East Rockaway.

The pageant of "Old Hickory," a product of the wilderness, who "Kept his bark on" will bring to life a forceful character, who had many friends and many enemies, too, who vetoed more bills than all his predecessors combined, who knew how to duel and did duel; who, although without education, studied law; who was a fighter for his nation and who created the "kitchen cabinet."

Rehearsals are being conducted under the direction of Len Grant, of Lawrence and Bill Recori, of Mineola, while the construction is being supervised by Wilbur Monsell, of Malverne. According to F. Howard Covey, Scout Executive, it will be the most spectacular pageant ever produced at Camp Wauwepex.
