

BEARS AT GROOVILLE.

Two Men Tread There Wednesday
While Surveying Timber.

While George Rice, of Parksville, and E. A. Wilson, of Deckertown, N. J., were inspecting timber land back of Orchard Lake, near Grooville, Wednesday, they heard bears growling close by and at once gave an exhibition of tree climbing that would put a squirrel to shame. Mr. Wilson's selection of a tree was not a success, as it broke when he reached the top and he tried another. About the time both men reached safety two large black bears came tearing through the brush, one pursuing the other and passed close to the trees, but without taking notice of the trembling occupants. When a few hundred feet away the pursuing bear caught the other and the fight continued. Rice and Wilson were not present when the fight was concluded.—Livingston Manor Times.

Orange County Times-Press
September 24, 1907